Google Street View

Google Street View is a technology feature from Google maps and Google Earth that provides panoramic views from various positions along streets in the world. It was launched in 2007 for a few cities in the United States but quickly expanded worldwide with the UK added in March 2009.

Since its introduction our staff has made full use of this visual aid. So successful has it been that, just two years on, we have corroborated with our web designer, and are extremely proud to be the first to introduce this tool to enable our customers full benefit of this technology.

In the course of our development however, we discovered that Google do not possess a licence to use the Royal Mail database. This means that postcodes are not sufficient to accurately map a property and the best method is to proceed by coordinates.

We are investing in the equipment required to enable all our property to be mapped to the correct grid reference. This will then allow all new property to be accurately mapped when introduced to the market. We also plan to map our entire portfolio over the course of the summer months.

Until the facility is fully functional our existing map facility will remain in place so that customers can be certain of obtaining accurate directions to their desired property.

We hope browsers enjoy making use of this new facility and thank you for your patience as we develop this area of our service.
