Making and Reviewing a Will

At Ken MacDonald & Co, we feel that everyone should have a will. We believe it should not simply be left for your parents or grandparents to consider – it is something you should consider doing and doing now.

We also believe that those who have made a will should review it at regular intervals to ensure no changes are required, due to a change in personal circumstances, legislation or tax.

Making a will could not be easier. As part of drawing up your will, we shall assist you in deciding whom to nominate as your “executor”. This is the individual who will look after your affairs and ensure that your wishes, as set out in your will, are carried out. You can appoint your spouse, children, relatives, friends or your solicitor to fulfil this role.

We shall also discuss with you to whom you wish your assets and belongings to go, be it friends, family or a charity of your choice.

At Ken MacDonald & Co we strive to make this process as clear and as stress free as possible. We offer a free no obligation first consultation. For standard straightforward wills we charge a nominal fee and a fair and reasonable fee for the more delicate or complex. We also offer a number of discounts.
